(single copy to Mus)

My dear fellow:

In the meantime you will have received my letter of 26 January, so that you know of my three-week absence and my address in Davos. Today I can send along an enclosure from Ma, which I received at the wedding.

As for the wedding: it was a beautiful party with about 60 persons, excellent food and service, music, dancing, nothing but nice people, mainly younger ones, in addition to the relatives of the bride and groom. We ourselves came in two cars, with <sup>Lydia</sup> KH, his girl friend and mother, and my wife and myself. Surely Ro will give you more details; there is nothing special to tell.

I informed Ro of your gift; he still wants to settle the matter with you by letter. I could not possibly make a gift of that amount, aside from the question as to whether a gift of that amount is desired. He himself will decide about that.

Late in the morning after the wedding, we met -- that is, the above-mentioned persons -- with the married couple in the mother's apartment. Ro withdrew with Ma<sup>N</sup> in order to be able to tell her about his trip in detail. He believes that he can repeat it toward the end of the year, but only with the old colleague; this time he would change a few formalities, that is, he would not pick up the colleague until they were abroad. It would be too early to write about it today. We will wait and see. He will be in trouble with his house building if he has no new income in prospect.

I know nothing from you that I can answer; my last word from you was your letter of 6 January 1978.

While I sent the last letter to Geza, I am sending this one to Mu, who must have come back in the meantime. One year ago, a letter from you arrived in Davos on the last day. In case you intend to write to us in Davos, please do so in good time, because there is no assurance that the letter will be forwarded.

That will be all for today. Many greetings from all of us also to the Musikus family, and especially to you, from

Your Messerle
